

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Kristi gets a promotion!

Learning Outcome

Express duty, advice, willingness, or intention to do something in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- If you could get a promotion, what job would it be? Why?
- What are the advantages to getting a promotion?
- What are some disadvantages? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about my intentions or particular purposes related to job issues.
- I can talk about work and working conditions.
- I can talk about what I will be doing in the future.

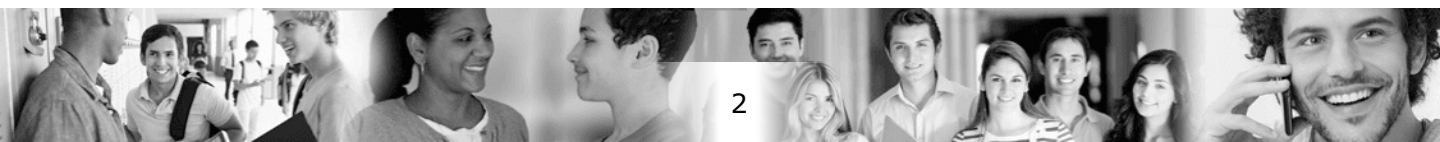

Let's Explore!

Ms. Moore has some big news for Kristi!

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Denise: Kristi, do you mind popping into my office when you have a moment?
- Kristi: Sure.
- Denise: Please, have a seat. I asked you to come see me in order to discuss the internal job posting that you applied for.
- Kristi: Great, I was actually going to stop by your office at the end of the day in regards to that.
- Denise: Well then, let's get down to business. After a lot of consideration, we have decided to go with you. You've been promoted!
- Kristi: Ah, really? Wow, thank you! Thanks so much!
- Denise: Congratulations. You'll be starting on Tuesday as junior editor.
- Kristi: So quickly? Will I be ready?
- Denise: Of course. In order to help you, I'll be sending you an e-mail with everything you need to know.
- Kristi: Will I be taking part in more meetings now?
- Denise: Yes. You'll also be undertaking more responsibilities and working longer hours.
- Kristi: I have a few questions, actually, so as to get a better understanding.
- Denise: Alright.
- Kristi: Will I be getting paid for overtime?
- Denise: Not necessarily. Instead of being paid, the extra hours will be used as time off in lieu. Essentially, you'll be banking hours. You will be receiving the salary increase which we discussed during the interview.
- Kristi: What about a benefit plan?
- Denise: Well as you know, after working here for three months, then you qualify for benefits.
- Kristi: So, to clarify, would I need to work for another three months in order to qualify for benefits?
- Denise: No. You've already been here for over a month. So, you only need another two to go.
- Kristi: Okay, that's good to know. Another question I had which was briefly touched upon in my interview is about traveling for this job.
- Denise: Yes, you'll be traveling. But keep in mind that you'll be traveling within the country, and not overseas. And the company will cover any kind of travel expenses. You could be traveling sometime soon, Kristi. BFP Publishing has a lot of plans for the future.

Let's Practice!

Ms. Moore has a purpose in mind!

Instructions: Use the words from the Word Bank to complete the sentences. You can use them more than once. Practice saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor. Use capital letters where necessary.

Word Bank

so as to / in order to / for

1. I wanted you to see me _____ discuss the internal job posting you applied for.
2. _____ me to qualify for benefits, do I need to wait another three months?
3. I prepared yesterday _____ feel confident today.
4. _____ help you, I'll be sending you an email with everything you need to know.
5. I have questions _____ get a better understanding.
6. I arrived early _____ appear motivated.

Let's Practice!

Let's get down to business!*

*This is an expression that means "let's get started" or "let's get directly to the point"

Instructions: Proofread the sentence. Cross out the incorrect word. Write the correct sentence on the line. Practice saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. Let's get up to business.

2. You've been promotion!

3. Will I be getting paid for over time?

4. You'll be undertaking more responsibilitys and working longer hours.

5. You'll be banking ours.

6. You will be receivieing a salary increase as mentioned in your interview.

7. What about a benefiting plan?

8. All traveling expense are covered by us.

Extension Activity

Write a letter asking for advice on accepting a promotion.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Imagine you are offered a promotion. You are not sure if you want to accept it. Write a 1-page letter to a good friend asking for advice.
- In the letter, indicate what the new job is and your new responsibilities.
- Talk about the advantages and disadvantages of accepting the promotion.
- Ask for advice.
- Use the structure of a letter (date, opening salutation, closing line).
- Use some target words from this lesson, such as: salary increase, time off in lieu, travel expenses and benefit plan.
- Read your letter to a partner. Your partner helps you decide if you will accept the promotion or not.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I write a letter following the correct structure.

☐ ☐

I describe advantages of accepting a promotion.

☐ ☐

I talk about disadvantages of a promotion.

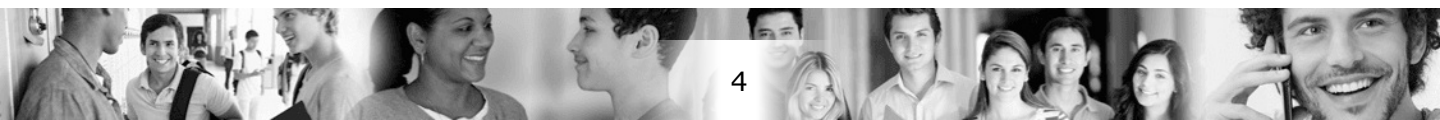

☐ ☐

I discuss the situation with a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to promote (verb): to move a person from one position to a higher position in the same company e.g. We have decided to go with you. You've been promoted!
- responsibility (noun): something that is expected of you e.g. You'll be given more responsibilities.
- work long hours (expression): to stay at your workplace from early in the morning to late in the evening e.g. However, you'll also be working longer hours.
- overtime (noun): time that is above what is normally expected of an employee e.g. Will I be getting paid for overtime?
- time off (noun): days that an employee does not work because of a holiday or other reasons e.g. Instead of being paid, the extra hours will be used as time off.
- in lieu (expression): in the place of e.g. You will get more holiday time in lieu of overtime.
- to bank hours (expression): to accumulate time, usually at work, that is compensated by free time later e.g. Essentially, you'll be banking hours.
- salary increase (noun): an employee's rate of pay going up e.g. You will be receiving a salary increase as mentioned in your interview.
- to undertake (verb): to work on (a project)
e.g. You'll also be undertaking more responsibilities in your new job.
- benefit plan (noun): advantages of working at a company other than salary, such as dental or health plan e.g. You qualify for a benefit plan with the company after three months of employment.

Learning Points

Emphasizing Intentions or Requirements

In a workplace, there may be circumstances when you have to explain your intention for doing something or to talk about certain requirements of the job.

You use purpose clauses to introduce your intentions or to talk about requirements. The most common way to express purpose is to use a to-infinitive (called an infinitive of purpose). You use this to emphasize one specific purpose.

For example:

I phoned to find out when the project is due.
I didn't do it to take the credit away from you.

Two common phrases to express purpose or intention are: in order to and so as to.

For example:

I arrived early so as to appear motivated.
I prepared yesterday in order to feel confident today.

Examples:

- I wanted you to come see me in order to discuss the internal job posting you applied for.
- In order to help you, I'll be sending you an email with everything you need to know.
- I have a few questions, actually, so as to get a better understanding of the position.

Learning Points

The Future Continuous Tense

You use the Future Continuous tense to talk about something that will be happening at a particular time in the future and to create a sense of atmosphere about the future.

The action will have started before that moment but it will not have finished at that moment.

For example:

I will be working at the office next week.

The person will start work at some point in the future and be working next week. It is not clear when the person will stop working.

There are two ways to use the Future Continuous tense:

1. When you want to talk about a short action that interrupts a long action in the future, you use the Future Continuous.

For example:

I will be standing outside the store when it opens in the morning.

Notice that the interruption (opens) is in the Simple Present tense. Conjunctions like: by the time, after, before, if, when, unless, and as soon as, begin time clauses and are followed by the Simple Present tense, NOT by future tenses.

2. You can also use two verbs in the Future Continuous to show that two actions will be happening at the same time in the future.

We are going to be sending out the e-mails and they are going to be writing up the agenda.

The structure of the Future Continuous is:

subject + will be + V -ing or subject + is/am/are + going to be + V -ing

Examples:

- I'll be sending you an email with everything you need to know.
- Will I be taking part in more meetings now?
- You'll also be undertaking more responsibilities and working longer hours.

