

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start!
- Let's Explore!
- Let's Practice!
- Extension Activity
- Target Words
- Learning Points

Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: Here's the pitch!

Learning Outcome

Understand actions, events, and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can present a sales pitch.
- I can express advice when selling a product.
- I can distinguish between different intonation patterns.

Ask your partner:

- Do you think it is hard to sell things? Why? Why not?
- Why are some people better at selling things than other people?

Let's Explore!

Ms. Moore practices her pitch!

* A "pitch" is something you throw, like a baseball. In this meaning, a "pitch" means to throw words or ideas.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Denise: Hey Kristi, do you have a minute?

Kristi: Sure, Ms. Moore. How can I help?

Denise: I have to do a sales pitch to the local school board. We want to sell them a textbook on financial literacy. Would you like to hear my pitch?

Kristi: Sure! I'd love to.

Denise: Hello, my name is Denise Moore and I work for Books for People Publishing. We are a leading provider of printed material for educational institutions in the Boston area. We have published a number of award-winning educational materials, including such widely known titles as The Government: Mine and Yours, Fun Facts of Science, and Amazing Shapes.

Kristi: So far so good.

Denise: Here at BFP Publishing, we have embarked on an exciting project publishing a series of workbooks designed to help teachers explore financial literacy in the classroom. Financial literacy is the ability to use knowledge and skills to make informed money management decisions. At the lower grade levels, it includes everyday skills such as writing checks and adding up sums of money, and goes on to more complicated notions such as understanding the stock market and planning for retirement. We feel that these topics are not adequately covered through the math and social studies units that are presently taught.

Kristi: Very interesting.

Denise: At BFP Publishing, we know that schools are busy places. Financial literacy is not likely to become a new subject on its own. That is why we have created a series of 12 workbooks that can be easily integrated into other subject areas. For example, at the lower grades, our workbooks are tied to picture and chapter books. At the upper grades, the workbooks can be used in history courses to help understand the Great Depression. In advanced mathematics courses, students learn about how banking works.

Kristi: I'm sold!

Let's Practice!

Financial history can be used to understand The Great Depression*.

*"The Great Depression" was a period of worldwide economic recession from 1929-1939.

Instructions: Write the words from the Word Bank to complete the paragraph. Practice reading the paragraph aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Word Bank

economy / subject / upper grades, / mathematics / literacy / lower grades, / Great Depression. / schools / workbooks / banking / integrated

At BFP Publishing, we know that _____ are busy places. Financial _____ is not likely to become a new _____ on its own. That is why we have created a series of 12 _____ that can be easily _____ into other areas. For example, at the _____ our workbooks can be tied to picture books. At the _____ they could be used in history courses to help understand the _____. In advanced _____ courses, you could teach students about the _____ or how _____ works.

Let's Practice!

Denise gives her pitch on the workbooks on financial literacy.

Instructions: Circle the correct word to complete the sentence. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. We are a of printed material for educational institutions in the Boston area.
2. We have published a of award-winning educational.
3. Financial is the ability to use knowledge and skills to make informed money management decisions.
4. It includes everyday skills such as writing checks and adding up sums of .
5. It goes on to complicated notions such as understanding the stock market and planning for retirement.

Extension Activity

Prepare a sales pitch for a product or service.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Choose any product or service you know well, like a brand of car, a certain holiday destination, etc.
- Write a 80 - 100-word sales pitch to sell the product or service. Follow the structure of a sales pitch in this lesson.
- Read your sales pitch to a partner. Use proper intonation.
- Ask for feedback and advice on how to improve the sales pitch.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write a sales pitch to sell a product or service.

☐ ☐

I read the sales pitch using correct intonation.

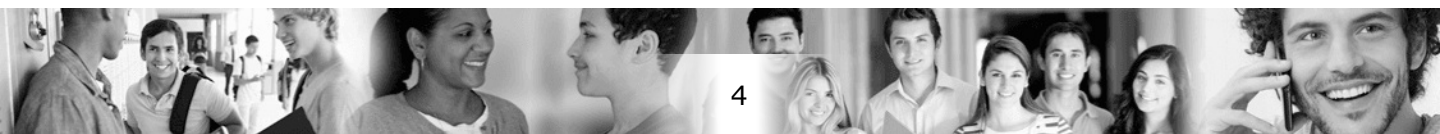

☐ ☐

I ask for advice to improve the pitch.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- workbook (noun): a book used to help learn a subject through different exercises and tasks to complete
e.g. Here at BFP Publishing, we have embarked on an exciting project publishing a series of workbooks.
- award-winning (adjective): so good that it has won awards
e.g. We have published a number of award-winning educational materials.
- grade level (noun): the year an elementary or secondary student is enrolled in e.g. At the lower grade levels, it includes everyday skills such as writing checks.
- financial literacy (noun): understanding how money and the economy work e.g. These workbooks are designed to help teachers explore financial literacy in the classroom.
- stock market (noun): an institution where shares in public companies and other financial products are traded e.g. The workbooks explore more complicated notions such as understanding the stock market and planning for retirement.
- check (noun): a small piece of paper a person signs to inform a bank to move money to a different account e.g. Students will learn how to write checks.
- economy (noun): the study or the management of financial activity in a country or a community
e.g. In advanced mathematics courses, you could teach students about the economy or how banking works.

Learning Points

Intonation with Non-Final Thought Groups

When a sentence is divided into two (or more) thought groups or clauses, each thought group has its own intonation pattern.

If the two groups are separate thoughts, you use a rising-falling pattern at the end of the first thought, and then a falling pattern at the end of the final thought.

For example:

To tell you the truth,// it can't be done.

If there is a connection between the two sentences, you use a rising intonation on the final stressed word.

For example:

If you make me,// I'll do it.

If the beginning group ends with a rising pattern, this will create a feeling of suspense.

For example:

If you want to get a promotion,// you'll have to work harder.

Read these examples from the text. Determine the correct intonation pattern. Listen to the dialogue to check.

Examples:

- At BFP Publishing,// we know that schools are busy places.
- At the upper grades,// the workbooks can be used in history courses to help understand the Great Depression.

Learning Points

How to Deliver a Sales Pitch

An effective sales pitch is a cooperative effort -- a conversation where you listen to the buyer, ask real questions, and offer them a solution to a challenge they're experiencing.

It's important to start with a great first impression. Begin with a catchy, relevant one-liner. Captivate your audience and go from there.

- Make sure you research your target audience/buyer. Understanding your customer is the first step in creating a great sales pitch.
- Identify what they need and show them that you've done your research. Tell them how to solve their problem or increase productivity.
- Have a referral ready. They are likely to complete a sale better than any other methods.

